Editor-in-Chief

The 11th annual Ohlone Theater Festival run by the Ohlone Drama department begins again April 8-9.

The festival will host 29 high schools from as far as Nevada and will be held throughout the campus in unused classrooms. Students will be competing in 35 categories ranging from musical theater to contemporary dramatic monologues.

The Ohlone Student Repertory Company, a class that works on one act plays, heads up the festival every year. They decide an overall theme for the event and organize high school volunteers into a productive cohesive unit. This year's theme is "the movies", in keeping with the theme, the students of the Student Repertory Company will be dressed as movie icons throughout the festival.

This year's festival will include all categories that appeared in previous festivals as well as more dance categories and the introduction of fantasy/horror makeup design.
