Africa is topic of Nov. 2 World Forum

By OMER AHMED
Staff writer

For the last Ohlone College World Forum of the year, Dr. Mutombo M'Panya will be speaking on world hunger and poverty in Africa.

The forum is titled "The African Continent and World Hunger" and will deal with the crisis in the sub-Saharan.

M'Panya's forum will be presented on Wednesday, Nov. 2 from noon to 2 p.m. in the Epler Gymnasium.

Currently half of Africa's population lives on less than a dollar a day and one in every three Africans suffer from malnutrition. Most counties are unable to keep up with their people's need for food, due to environmental and political reasons such as drought and widespread civil conflict.

M'Panya has worked extensively to further international aid including serving on the boards of the Center for Global Health, the International Development Exchange, World Neighbors and acting as the coordinator of many non-governmental aid organizations.

He has also worked on material health projects in Ecuador and Nicaragua. Now he is the director of Science and Humanities Integration Project at Sonoma State where he teaches in the Hutchins School of Liberal Arts and the California Institute of Integral Studies.

Drama set in video store for ONTV

In a tiny storage room at the very top of the Ohlone hill, students bustle about, readying for their performances, changing into costumes, setting up props and equipment and studying lines.

Among the madness and chaos is a feeling of organization, of things coming together.

The room, part of the Ohlone

College Foundation's office in Building 27 has been converted into a temporary video store complete with popular movie titles, film posters and a pornographic film section, parental advisory and all.

The two main characters of the sitcom, Mallory and Janice, are played by Candice Kirk and Jessie Anderson. They work at a video store and face escapades in dating as well as dealing with each other.

"They're a couple of crazy girls in a even more bizarre world," said AJ Hamilton, who plays Constantine, the German owner of the video store.

Two Ohlone students, Amy Cantrall and Conrado Villazor wrote the comedy script, which was chosen from approximately twelve others. So far no title has been chosen.

"Right now it's still untitled, but we should have a title by the time it comes out," said James Devreaux, who plays the character Dave.

Pete Stark will speak on campus

Congressman Pete Stark, Democrat of the Thirteenth District, which includes Ohlone College, will speak on campus Oct. 29 as part of the first Early Childhood Studies Department Conference.

Pete Stark

Attending will students in the early childhood education program, parents, professionals from the field and members of the community.

The keynote address will be by Dr. Janis Jones, assistant professor, early childhood studies.

The conference will be held at Ohlone's Child Development Center. For more information, contact the center at (510) 979-7589.

Gumby turns 50

Stephen C. Wathen, who works in the scene shop and wrote stage adaptations for Ohlone's recent productions of Dracula and The Three Musketeers, was an animator for the Gumby character, which marked its 50th anniversary recently. See story on Page 5.

Campus blood drive set Oct. 27

By MORGAN BRINLEE
Staff writer

The Student Health Center is gearing up to help the American Red Cross fight blood collection shortages with their semi-annual blood drive Oct. 27 in the Cafeteria.

The Red Cross reported shortages in blood collection over the summer. "Few people understand that blood is a perishable resource and must be replenished. At least 60 percent of the population is eligible to donate, yet only 5 percent actually donates," said Chief Medical Officer of the American Red Cross, Dr. Jerry Squires. The Red Cross receives 15 to 20 percent of its blood supply from high schools and colleges.

This year the Red Cross will bring the Alyx machine to Ohlone for red cell donations. Blood is made up of red cells, plasma and platelets, all needed for various medical reasons. Red cell donations are a more efficient way of supplying the most requested component of blood. The Alyx machine can extract double the amount of red blood cells from a donor than a regular blood donation can. Donating with the Alyx system can take up to 20 minutes longer than a whole blood donation, but it uses a smaller needle and is reported to be more comfortable. Ohlone's goal for the drive is 43 pints. For information, call (510) 659-6258.

Flu shots available for $15

By JEROME ENGELBERTS

Sally Bratton, director of the Student Health Center, has announced that flu shots are available as of now at the center.

If you want to get a flu shot (and who wants the flu, instead?), make an appointment by calling 510 659-6258 and bring cash or a check for $15 if you're a student, or $20 if you're a faculty member (teachers get a more expensive kind of flu).
