Johnson used the Selma march of 1965 to shame Congress into passing the Voting Rights Act of 1965. Johnson was a man with deep personal flaws; he was personally racist and a bigot. Yet his respect for the Constitution pushed him to endorse and support legislation that stood in sharp contrast to his own personal beliefs. Selma does a serious disservice to both Johnson and King.

Tuesday is best for finishing homework.

Studies show it is the most productive day of the week. You can learn even more earning a bachelor's degree from National University. Online. On campus. Non-profit.

Don't think you have time to learn something new? You just did.