6 point scale for clarity of communication:

5- Very clear and complete expression of difficult ideas.
4- Expression of the ideas was clear with minor ideas or nuanced aspects of the idea unexplored/not communicated.
3- Expression of ideas are clear, but several minor ideas or nuanced aspects of the idea are unexplored/not communicated/ or communicated in a confused manner.
2- Several minor ideas are unexplored/not communicated/communicated in a confused manner. Major or key ideas are also expressed in a confused way.
1- Major or key ideas are expressed in a confusing way. Nuances of the ideas are communicated ineffectively (a reader with no background knowledge would not understand the ideas correctly, or would have a difficult time understanding the idea.)
0- Major ideas are expressed in a manner that would give a person with no background knowledge of the subject the wrong idea that the philosopher would want to communicate.
